

Recommended Profile

The most common entry profile would be students with a degree related to this Master's Degree such as English Philology, English Studies, Modern Languages, Culture and Communication, Translation and Interpreting, or other degrees which include study of foreign languages such as Tourism. The Master's Degree in English Applied Linguistics usually has some students who have completed the Master's Degree in Secondary School Teacher Training and have specialized in Language Teaching, and is open to students from other degrees which are not directly related.