1.11. Objetivos del curso / Course objectives

International business differs in important ways from business conducted within national borders. Managing import/export, and above all foreign direct investments, poses important challenges, but it is a precondition for growth and competitiveness in the current international economic setting.

This course provides a framework for analyzing decisions made by firms in an international context. It will provide the basis for formulating successful strategies in the international business environment. This course combines issues in strategy, international finance, trade theory, trade policy, marketing, human resource management, and other related areas.

The course emphasizes the use of analytical tools, and it provides an environment for developing oral and written communication skills. The course is designed in an integrated way, so that there is some overlap with material taught in more specialized courses on international marketing and international finance.

Our goal is to supply the student with the basic technical fundamentals as well as the elements of analysis to undertake and to evaluate the internationalization processes of companies. The student should also be familiar with the necessary tools of management for each subsystem of a company with activities outside its country of origin.

Generic competencies:

. Theoretical capacity of analysis and synthesis; ability to translate knowledge into decision making and problem solving; ability to identify opportunities and threats; ability to work under pressure; negotiation skills; ability to make decisions; critical and self-criticism; ability to interdisciplinary team work; leadership skills; ability to work in an international context; ability to find relevant information for the field of study; ability to process information in internet context and use of tools for remote communication ; skills for public presentation of works, ideas and reports; initiative and entrepreneurship; concern for quality and a well done job; effective time management.

Specific competencies:

. Design and manage business projects; design of organizational structures and identify variables relevant for business decision making; organization and planning of background knowledge to better acquire advanced senior
